To completely change directions: here's a travel tip for those heading toward Lake Placid and the Olympic complex. Cecily Morrow, who many of you may know for her videotape training series, has organized an exhibit of photos and text in tribute to Mr. Lussi at Lake Placid. Located between the rink named for the master coach and the 1932 Olympic Arena, the exhibit features a lot of photos that had just kind of been around, along with a biography of Lussi which ASW readers may find familiar. Of course, it appeared here under less than happy circumstances.
